

BOY KILLED WHEN RACE CAR THROWS A WHEEL.

A very unfortunate and unusual accident happened during the auto races at the fair grounds Saturday afternoon which resulted in the death of Elmer Wheaton, ten year old stepson of Ed Musil, of Hayes Center. Mr. and Mrs. Musil and two sons had driven over from Hayes Center to see the races and arrived at the grounds while a race was in progress. They drove the car to the west end of the track and the boys got out of the car and ran up to the fence in order to get a better view of the races. As the Ford car in the race rounded the southwest turn the spindle broke and the wheel flew through the air. It traveled about twenty feet, struck the around bounded and struck the boy on left side of the head, fracturing the skull and breaking the jaw and neck and killing him instantly. The wheel bounded from the boy and hit the open door of an auto breaking it off the hinges. The car losing the wheel was not overturned and the driver was not injured.

The body of the boy was taken to the Derryberry and Forbes morgue, prepared for burial and taken to Junction City, Wis., Sunday for interment. Mrs. Musil had just returned a few days before from Junction City, where she was called by the death of her mother. Mr. Musil is a real estate dealer in Hayes Center.

AMERICANS DRIVE WEDGE IN LINE AT ARGON.

Sunday was a day of comparative quietness on the American front but early yesterday morning the big guns broke loose and the entire western front was a continuous roar all day.

The big American seventy-fives started to belch death with dawn, raining shells into the Argonne hills regions, a fire so intense that no man could live in through it. Over all No Man's land along this front the rain of steel continues, the preparation for further advances being the greatest known in history of the war.

American infantry is moving forward steadily under protection of this fire and along the entire line an advance has been made.

The number of prisoners taken has not been learned, but it is known that losses inflicted on the Teuton armies along this front have been enormous. The enemy has been forced to throw fresh troops into the line at numerous intervals, only to see them mowed down by the intense shell and machine gun fire.

At one point of the line the Americans penetrated for four miles on a front of about nine miles and they are still moving forward despite strengthening of enemy forces, both artillery and infantry.

Americans are now engaged along practically all of the western battle front.

Sammy Girls Give Concert

The Sammy Girls gathered in many dollars Saturday afternoon by giving a concert at the fair grounds. The contributions were voluntary which evidenced the good spirit of the crowd. T. M. Chohan donated his motor truck, a piano was placed there on and a dozen or more girls sang, while Capt. John Evans solicited the crowd to donate to the good of the cause. The total donations were $368 which the Sammy Girls will turn over to the Red Cross canteen service.

The coming year promises to be one of the very best in school activities in spite of the fact that many of the boys from the class are now in the service.

OCTOBER 5th IS "WOMEN IN WAR WORK DAY."

Millions of women in the United States are engaged in war work. Seven hundred thousand women serve as active workers in the organization of the National Woman's Liberty Loan Committee. Seventy thousand women are employed on the railroads. Hundreds of thousands of women are laboring in the munitions factories. Other hundreds of thousands serve in clerical work directly related to the war. As many more are engaged in the Red Cross and other activities for the amelioration of war conditions. The women of America are doing their share in the winning of the war, both by actual hard work and by the tremendous force of their moral influence. It is fitting that their service should be memorialized and Saturday, October 5 has been designated for observation in the Fourth Liberty Loan Campaign as Women in War work day.

Five Battles Now Raging

Marshal Foch is fighting five battles simultaneously and successfully—a feat unparalleled in the history of war. Each battle is so timed and placed that each army supports another, all forming an indispensable part of the whole front.

General Grant's idea of a continuous concurrent attack by a multiplicity of forces on many fronts is being realized by the allied generalissimo. There are five battles today; there may be more tomorrow, all inter-related and working as smoothly as the cylinders of a well adjusted automobile engine. All are directed to the same end—to wear down the enemy's strength. Marshal Foch alone knows when the allies will strike the decisive blow.

The enemy still is fighting well. He is offering splendid resistance west of the Argonne, but how long can he keep it up.

Experts agree that the enemy's withdrawal to a shorter line, probably that of Anwerp, Brussels, Meziere and Metz is imminent. Some believe he has hung on too long and that he will have great difficulty in preventing his retreat from degenerating into a rout.

NOTICE!

On and after October 1st, we will conduct our business on a strictly cash basis.

Thirteen girls are now employed in the office of Yardmaster Sinclair. Some are employed as clerks, others as car checkers.

Miss Marguerite and Angela Roddy spent a few days in Lexington last week.

The P. E. O. will meet tomorrow afternoon at the home of Mrs. F. W. Rincker.

Mascagni and the War.

Pietro Mascagni, the celebrated composer, once told how the opening chorus of "Cavaleria" was composed on the night of February 3, 1899, when his first child was born. That son, Mimì, is now, or was recently, driving a motor-truck for the Italian army; and a second boy, Dino, became a private in the engineer corps, blowing up Austrian barbed-wire barricades. On a visit to the young soldiers Mascagni saw his first battle.

"This is indeed music," he wrote. "It seems as if all the big drums in my orchestra had been multiplied by a million and suddenly gone mad."

The composer gave open-air concerts in the trenches, on one occasion attended by the king of Italy, and he set himself at work on a great patriotic symphony, designed to be a musical apotheosis of Italy's "war of redemption."

Mine Wrecks Garden.

While sitting on the back porch of her home, Mrs. William Dolmetach of the 700 block, on North Bromley avenue, Seranton, Pa., saw the rear portion of the yard sink into a mine working, exposing numerous mine props, while a short distance away a similar settling exposed men at work in the mines. In each case the gardens have dropped about 15 feet. The home of Matthew Scott has escaped damage, but the earth on all sides has sunk, making the residence appear as though on an island.

Few streets in the city are suffering worse damage from mine caves than Bromley avenue. Gardens, posts, trees and sidewalks have fallen in.

HUNS ARE EXPECTED TO FALL BACK TO RHINE.

From the North sea to the Meuse the allied armies are pressing successfully thru main German defenses. The suburbs of Cambrai have been entered and the allies are closing in on Lille, St. Quentin and Laon, while the French and American drive northward west of the Meuse continues.

Germany's hard-pressed armies are fighting desperately, but the allies are hammering their way steadily into the German defense system, the overthrow of which probably will result in a German retirement to the French border, if not to the Rhine. The heaviest fighting of the war on the western front now is in progress and the allies on all sectors are moving ahead.

The Germans have been driven from the hills around Ypres and from the formidable Meuse-Wyschaete position. The Belgian and British troops are driving a wedge between the Belgian coast and the great fortress of Lille, threatening Lille and the submarine bases of Ostend and Zeebrugge. More than 9,000 Germans have been captured in the Flanders operations.

From south of the Scarpe to the Oise north of Laon, the British French and Americans are crushing the German defenses with mighty blows. The fall of Cambrai seems to be only a matter of hours. With Cambrai in allied hands, the German positions at Douai, St. Quentin and Laon will be perilous.

North of St. Quentin the allies are gaining near Le Catelet despite strong counter attacks. Here they are within the Hindenburg line and are outflanking St. Quentin. Between St. Quentin and Laon the French are holding their gains against heavy German efforts.

In Champagne, General Gouraud has resumed his drive northward between Laon and Metz. Most of the hill positions are in his hands. East of the Argonne, the Americans continue their pressure.

Injured in Auto Accident.

While enroute to town Saturday forenoon a car driven by S. E. Clothier of Tryon and with his wife and five others as passengers overturned twenty miles north of town. Five of the seven occupants were thrown free of the car, but Mr. and Mrs. Clothier were pinned underneath and could not be extricated until a car following a couple miles behind arrived. Mr. Clothier was badly cut on an arm and bruised about the body. Mrs. Clothier was seriously hurt internally, the full extent of which is not at this time known. She was taken to the Mather's farm house and Dr. Twillem summoned. She will probably be moved to a hospital as soon as her condition will warrant. The car overturned when it skidded coming down a steep hill.

Bear in mind that everything is on sale in our dry goods department, suits, coats, dresses all included in our sale. We can save you money. E. T. TRAMP & SONS.

WAR RELICS ARE VIEWED BY MANY HUNDREDS.

The special war relics train arrived last evening on schedule time, six ten and remained until after midnight, although the doors were closed shortly after ten. Though the evening was cold and rainy the number who viewed the relics was large, running into many hundreds, not a few of whom were from country precincts. The train consisted of four cars, two flat cars loaded with cannons, bombing planes, howitzers and mortars, a box car containing all kinds of shells, helmets and soldiers paraphernalia and a Pullman for sleeping accommodations for the score or more men accompanying the train. The exhibit gave the spectators a good insight into the implements of modern warfare, and this information was heightened by lectures on the work of the trench and field guns by a member of the party.

Eyre Powell, a war correspondent was the train commander, and next in command was Mr. Mudd, Knights of Columbus war secretary, every member of whose family is in the service, the men as fighters and the women as nurses. In the party was a French veteran bedecked with medals, who has been in the service twenty years in campaigns before the present war.

"OVER THE TOP"

Part of the Censor, Copyright 1918.

"Over the top, boys, and give 'em hell!" When the zero hour arrives and the waves of troops go over and forward, the barrage fire rolls ahead of them, shielding them with an impenetrable wall of fire. A barrage laid down ahead of our advancing troops, protecting them and razing the German positions, may cost from $500,000 in Liberty Bonds upwards.

"When you're waiting to go over the top you think of a lot of things," said an infantry Lieutenant on the sector near Cantigny recently.

"As you stand there with the hands of your watch moving around to the zero hour, the draft whipping acid wisps of smoke down the trench, and see your platoon gripping their rifles, with bayonets set, ready to follow you over into that hell, you know that some of them won't come back.

"You look at the second hand of your watch. 'Ten seconds,' 'five seconds,' and you glance across to where the barrage forms a protecting wall of fire. 'Two seconds'—and you thank God for the folks back home that are backing you up and putting up the money for all of those shells, for they mean that these brave boys are to be given the best chance for life out there.

"Zero—and over you go." The barrage fire is a wall of bursting shells that moves ahead of the advancing troops in an attack. So perfectly is the schedule timed that the artillerymen, far in the rear, know each second just where the first wave is, and raising the angle of their guns, keep the bursting shells just ahead.

Official British figures show the seven-day bombardment during the attack on the Meuse-Wyschaete ridge in June, 1917, cost $53,791,235 in ammunition. In this case the front covered was at six miles. The preliminary curtain of fire, laid down for 30 days, cost $43,166,535.

A small barrage may cost as much as $100,000.
